

I HAD NO OPTION BUT TO LEAVE

Former Enemalta CEO David Spiteri Gingell speaks out about his clash with Austin Gatt, while shouldering responsibility for not vetting Lahmeyer International:

'I was the chairman. Responsibility starts and stops with me. That is the way accountability works in my mind'

KARL STAGNO-NAVARRA

FORMER Enemalta chief executive officer David Spiteri Gingell revealed that he had resigned his post in June 2008 as he "could not contribute as well as [he] could under the regime being imposed and I felt I had no option but to leave."

Speaking to MaltaToday just hours after admitting on PBS his "mistake" by appointing Lahmeyer International, black-listed by the World Bank, as consultants to the Delimara power station extension project without conducting any due diligence, Spiteri Gingell revealed how "different views with the ministry of where responsibility and authority for line management would lie" led to his departure.

PAGE 3

OPINION

Raphael Vassallo
pg12

pg 5

2010: Year of Biodiversity

pg10

Waiting for the flood...

FREE INSIDE

Business Today

Malta based Hedge Funds total €7.3 billion

Euro Chief backs EU plans to vet national budgets

Middlesea Group registers profitable Q1

Greek minister resigns over husband's €4.7 million tax bill

UK inflation higher than expected

VOLCANIC ASH UPDATE: Outbound flights to Europe back to normal PAGE 6

FOOD FEARS

Health experts warn of rising poisoning risks due to global warming

PAGE 4

LIFE IS UNFAIR...

Blacklisted firm Lahmeyer Int. complains of 'unfair treatment' by Maltese media and politicians

PAGE 2

SICILY

SPECIAL OFFER

VIRTUFERRIES

YOUR MONEY GETS YOU FURTHER

50% OFF

Normal Return from Eur67.65 including charges

Day Trip from Eur59.65 including charges

Further Offer:
2 children (under 14 years) travel free with every 2 paying adults (to pay charges only)

Tel: 22069022 - www.virtuferries.com
CONDITIONS APPLY